Retail Resource Guide

WHAT A YEAR!

Resilience. What better word to describe the way independent garden centers have persevered through the 2020 season? Your ability to not only survive, but thrive, through the adversity you have faced during this pandemic demonstrates your remarkable strength to adapt and recover from any challenge.

While initially worrisome, “Safer at Home” recommendations implemented early this spring proved to be beneficial to many retail garden centers. Everyone from first-time gardeners to those experienced homeowners who were eager to get their hands dirty were ready to buy and you were there to help. When spring openings looked uncertain, many IGCs quickly added online ordering options or developed ways to offer safe no-contact curbside pickup or delivery services for the first time ever.

Time and time again, you rose to the significant and unique challenges of the season. We are so proud of the way this industry pulled through, especially the tremendous small business owners who represent the IGC market.

We knew you would want to be as proactive as possible and we wanted to help, so we created the IGC Connect Facebook group and the IGC Connect Google Drive. These resources were initially focused on quickly getting useful tools into your hands. The Facebook group also served as an online meeting space where you could ask questions of us or your peers as you transitioned into new ways of doing business. We have been blown away by this social community and plan to continue to enhance these resources in the coming months.

As mothers ourselves, we understood that many of our customers had children looking for engaging, safe activities to do at home. Consequently, we launched our new Club Sprout program in April. IGCs have expressed their excitement over the fun, educational garden projects included in this program, so we intend to expand it in 2021. You’ll read more about it on p. 23.

This year, hundreds of retail garden centers subscribed to Connect+, our exclusive new marketing service for IGCs. These subscribers used their benefits to reach customers during a crucial time through targeted Facebook campaigns, Pandora internet radio ads, social media graphics and more. Read more about this year’s Connect+ offerings on p.14.

We look forward to the new season with plenty of enthusiasm and excitement but above all, we want to take this opportunity to thank you for your continued support of Proven Winners. We couldn’t do this without you, and we are incredibly grateful for your partnership.

All the best,
Meghan and Jessica

Retail Survival Guide

6 THINGS IGC'S LEARNED THIS SPRING

Congratulations on surviving the craziest spring in retail ever! Every year presents challenges, but Spring 2020 was a real doozie. As the nation's health situation and resulting regulations changed daily – sometimes even hourly – retailers had no choice but to quickly adapt to a new way of doing business. The good news is you've survived. Even better news is that we've all learned some incredibly important lessons about operating in a time of crisis. Here are six standouts.

1. Your store must have a strong, diversified online presence.

Who ever fathomed that your physical store location would be ordered to shut down during the most critical time of year? What was once unimaginable became a reality for retailers nationwide this spring. For those who did not already have an online presence via social media or a website, it was devastating. Those whose business was online in some form found that presence to be absolutely vital to their survival.

Going forward, this crisis has taught us that stores must have an online presence, but it is not enough to have a static, uninspiring website. Now is the time to take a critical look at what kind of messages you are conveying on your website and through social media, how you are telling your story and how effectively you are interacting with customers online.

2. Marketing during hard times is imperative.

Any marketing professional will tell you – when times are hard, it's more important than ever to focus on marketing. Yet, the marketing budget is often the first place businesses cut in a down economy. When funds are tight, you may need to shift your advertising dollars to less expensive venues (think Facebook ads v. print publications), but marketing and advertising cannot be eliminated.

Customers do not stop spending entirely when times are hard, they just spend differently. Focus on the core items you offer that everyone needs to garden – tried and true plants, potting and garden soil, grass seed, hoses and the like. Keep in front of people with information that will help them be better gardeners and when things improve, your store will be the first place they return to.

3. Building customer relationships and loyalty is vital.

Greeting a good customer by name as they enter your store, chatting them up about how they are liking their new hydrangeas, and walking them over to your brand new shipment of flowering salvias are all ways you've built customer relationships in your physical store in the past.

If people are no longer able to walk your store, how will you continue to offer that kind of personal touch? Now is the time to reinvent your customer service in a safe no-contact way that makes your customers feel comfortable shopping with you. You might:

- Communicate with customers via text or Messenger using photos and a personalized message.
- Use Facebook Live or Instagram TV to walk customers through your store virtually.
- Highlight key plants in stock on the home page of your website.
- Offer timely, regionally appropriate gardening tips on social media, ie. "In Cincinnati, it's time to cut down your perennial Hibiscus stalks," including an action photo or short video clip.

4. Revisit the in-store experience for your customers.

Due to health concerns, retailers have had to adjust many things in store such as the distance between benches, the amount of personal space between customers and staff, the cleanliness of checkouts and restrooms and countless other details. Put yourself in the shoes of your 65-year-old female customer who enjoys coming to your store to pick out plants for her window boxes. What do you need to do to make her feel safe in your store?

5. Reflect on your company's values.

The necessity of reinventing your business at the most critical time of year has surely had a lasting impact. This spring was all about survival. Did you notice how some small things you used to think were so important suddenly weren't anymore? The opposite was also true. Those potholes in your parking lot became a lot more noticeable when people were spending more time there waiting for their curbside pickup order.

After surviving a crisis, it forces some introspection. Which of the changes you made this year were for the better? What did you learn about serving your customers in a way that made them feel more comfortable shopping at your store? How will this change your business model going forward?

6. Find a more efficient way to schedule your staff.

In a quickly changing environment where more staff may need to take time off due to illness, you need a more efficient way of scheduling your shifts, covering absences and communicating among your employees. Perhaps when your business first opened this was done physically on paper or a white board. Today, there are handy apps like When I Work and Slack that get the job done far more efficiently. Many of these types of apps offer free plans for small businesses. They are worth researching now and setting in place before the busyness of spring returns next year.

SNACKABLE SUCCESS STORIES

Down to Earth Garden Center in Eau Claire, Wisconsin offered vegetable seed starting kits for curbside pickup and followed it up with a how-to video on Facebook. This service directly addressed their customers' desire to grow their own food safely while moving product from the store's inventory.

Windsors Nursery in Kimberly, Idaho advertised free delivery services to local customers for the month of April on Facebook. Their phone number was added to the post for the customers' convenience.

Chalet Nursery in Wilmette, Illinois is known for offering a strong education program that normally includes guest lecturers, hands-on workshops and garden coaching services. Since their store was closed for in-person shopping, they moved their education online to their blog and social media. This handy chart explained which kinds of seeds customers should be planting that week according to their local weather conditions.

Molbak's Garden + Home in Woodinville, Washington announced the installation of a new Victory Garden to support their local community and provide a teaching model for others to do the same.

Suburban Lawn & Garden, with three locations in the Kansas City, Missouri area, created a simple, efficient graphic for Instagram showing three ways to shop safely with Suburban during the shutdown. A detailed caption described which services were offered at each specific location.

FREE RESOURCES FOR IGCS

At Proven Winners, one of our core values is supporting independent garden centers. Like you, we were challenged to find alternative ways to help our customers this spring. Listening to many IGCS about the unique issues they were suddenly facing led to the creation of a suite of new tools to make navigating this crisis a little easier.

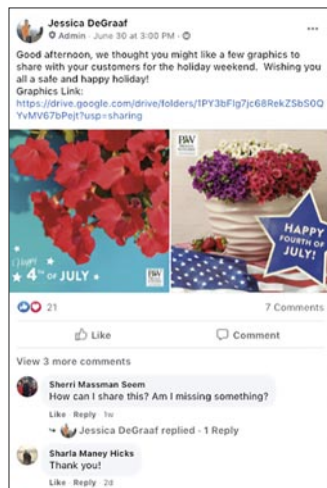

IGC Connect Facebook Group

On March 30, we launched a private new Facebook group named Proven Winners IGC Connect for garden center owners and staff to have a place where they could collaborate with one another to ask questions, seek solutions and share resources. Over 1,000 members to date have participated in the group discussion to ask anything from, “Where can I buy carts with wheels that can navigate the pea gravel in my new outdoor sales area?” to wholesale growers announcing available inventory of hard to find items.

In addition to fostering peer-to-peer interaction, Jessica and Meghan are posting links to free resources and tools offered to IGCS by Proven Winners like social media graphics for National Pollinator Week, hands on Club Sprout gardening projects for kids, links to relevant webinars and business tools, and much more.

We encourage you and your key staff, including the person who manages your social media and website, to join the Proven Winners IGC Connect Facebook group today – and invite your fellow retail colleagues, too.

Members of our Facebook Group are the first to hear about programs, resources and events like our fall webinar detailing benefits of the Connect+ programs.

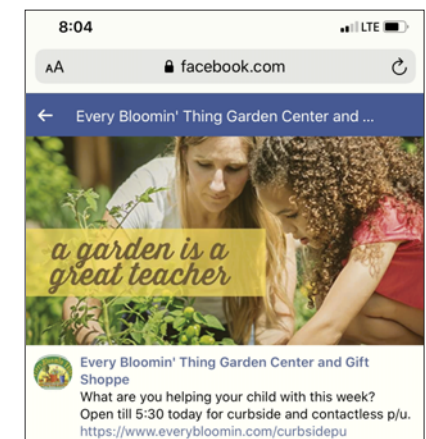

IGC Connect Google Drive

The unique challenges of Spring 2020 led to more garden centers than ever before needing to build an online store and move the bulk of their messaging to social media. To accomplish this, IGCS needed to gather a huge number of images, graphics, plant descriptions and benchcards quickly to populate these sales and marketing tools.

We understand the extreme staffing limitations that IGCS are facing and want to help you continue to communicate regularly with your customers. On our IGC Connect Google Drive, you will find 130+ readymade social media graphics, downloadable benchcards, images and descriptions for every Proven Winners plant variety, Proven Pollinators POP, Club Sprout gardening projects – all for FREE. These resources will make it easier for you to assemble your newsletter, write your blog and put together your social media posts using content you’ll find all in one place.

✚ The IGC Connect Google Drive is free to all levels of Connect+ subscribers at: www.pwwin.rs/IGCResources

Here’s a look at how some garden centers are using the free resources in our Google Drive to create social media content.

Retail Survival Guide

KEEPING IN TOUCH WITH CUSTOMERS

How do you continue to build relationships with customers and motivate them to shop at a time when they are nervous about leaving their house? You must meet them where they are, acknowledge the times we are living through, and help them find a way to keep on growing what they love. One could argue there are few other hobbies as healthy or necessary as gardening during a pandemic.

In addition to our IGC Connect Google Drive, these resources will make it easier for you to assemble your newsletter, write your blog and put together your social media posts using content you'll find all in one place.

Free and Low-Cost Marketing Tools for IGCs

When you plug in the free resources from our IGC Connect Google Drive to the online marketing tools we've described below, marketing your business has never been easier.

Canva – If you don't have a graphic designer on retainer, Canva can get the job done. Use this online graphic design platform to craft anything you could need to market your business including social media posts, direct marketing messages, in-store signage, postcards, event invitations, business cards, gift certificates and much more. Hundreds of free templates are available; paid plans offer more advanced tools and content.

Photo Editing Apps – Almost any type of image you need to create for social media posts and newsletters can be made using a simple, free app on your phone. Create a quick photo collage of the new Supertunias you've just brought in for your next Facebook post, add some stylish text over a picture to load into your Instagram Story, or create a quick graphic for today's direct marketing email using the photos on your phone and one of these apps. A few we like include Pixlr, Typic, Layout and Moldiv, but you will find dozens more in the App Store.

Social Scheduling Tools – Smart marketers use social scheduling tools to ensure the right messages are delivered at the right time on the right social media platforms. A number of these tools are available, some of the most popular being Hootsuite, Planoly, SkedSocial, TweetDeck, Tailwind and Sprout Social. Most offer very basic free plans, but if you find yourself dedicating a small part of your monthly budget to this marketing tool, it will be worth every penny.

Email Marketing Services – If you are not already using an email marketing service, it's time to look into one. Commonly used services include: Constant Contact, Mailchimp, iContact, Mad Mimi, HubSpot and Drip. A good email marketing service should help you create engaging newsletters and direct marketing messages you can personalize and send to targeted groups of customers. It should make it easy to manage your list of contacts, segment your list into groups, and track the performance of your email marketing campaigns. Most importantly, a good email marketing service helps to ensure your emails do not end up in your customers' spam folders.

 Our targeted Facebook ad campaign can help you reach the right demographic and attract new customers.

OFFERING PICKUP AND DELIVERY SERVICES

In Spring 2020, many IGCs were required to stop all in-store sales but curbside pickup and delivery services were allowed. While this initially sounded like an easy alternative, some stores quickly realized that handling the enormous volume of spring traffic all in a single file line in their parking lot was not feasible. Lack of space, staffing and time to take and pull orders were all barriers.

4 Lessons IGCs Learned about Curbside and Delivery Services This Spring

1. In-store pickup is easier to execute than curbside pickup.

Though it might seem like a small difference, having customers come in to your store to pick up their order works better for many stores than sending their staff out to the parking lot. This fall, engage your team in developing a more efficient system for in-store pickup services, then decide how you will communicate the process clearly to your customers so they'll know what to expect when they shop.

2. Curbside pickup can be done well with advance planning.

The reality is that some customers will simply not feel comfortable going into any retail store in the near future. Now that you have a season's worth of experience in curbside pickup, work with your staff to develop a better plan going forward. Do you need to change how your parking lot is set up? What protocols need to be put in place for employees leaving the greenhouse to load customers' vehicles? What do you need to do to make your customers feel safe when picking up their orders?

3. Delivery services are a way to build relationships.

At a time when in-store shopping was impossible, delivery services became a way to foster the human connection we all were starving for after months of staying at home. A smiling person delivering flowers was never more welcome, especially for those high risk customers who did not feel safe leaving home to shop.

Consider continuing your delivery services even after the health crisis has passed. There will always be people who desire this service and are willing to pay for it. Find a price that works for your budget and advertise delivery through all your marketing channels to show you are willing to serve your customers safely in this manner.

4. Online ordering is a must.

When the phone rings off the hook in spring and your staff is too busy to answer and take orders, you'll end up losing business or spending hours tracking down customers. Now is the time to work on building an online inventory system for taking orders and for your staff to use as an accurate reference when they are asked if certain plants are in stock. Then, work on developing an order pulling system that works with your business setup. We'll discuss that more on the next page.

Retail Survival Guide

MOVING YOUR STORE ONLINE

Demand for ordering plants and products online skyrocketed overnight in Spring 2020 when stores were shuttered by state and local municipalities. Though some IGCs were already set up for online sales, many were not, and they needed to move their inventory online very quickly. The free images and plant descriptions from the Proven Winners IGC Connect Google Drive helped populate online ordering systems quickly, but an inventory management system was also needed.

IGCs explored new options for moving their store online this spring, and the learning continues. Fall and winter is a great time to explore all your options. We'll get you started with a few popular systems on these pages, but you may find others you'd prefer to utilize as you conduct your research.

Simple PDF Order Form

At the most basic level, keeping track of your store's inventory on a spreadsheet allows you to generate a simple order form that includes all in-stock items. This PDF form can easily be added to your website for your customers to download, complete and email back to you. You will need to set up a plan ahead of time to process these emailed orders in the order they were received and communicate back with customers regarding their orders.

Shopify, Square and WooCommerce Systems

Adding online ordering capabilities for your store is easier than ever before thanks to affordable systems like Shopify, Square and WooCommerce. These systems link to your current website to allow online ordering services.

Shopify (www.shopify.com) turns your retail store into an online store through a single platform used to sell products through your website, social media and online marketplaces. You have the ability to manage all of your orders, shipping and payments through a single dashboard. The basic $29/month plan covers most services IGCs would need to manage their online store.

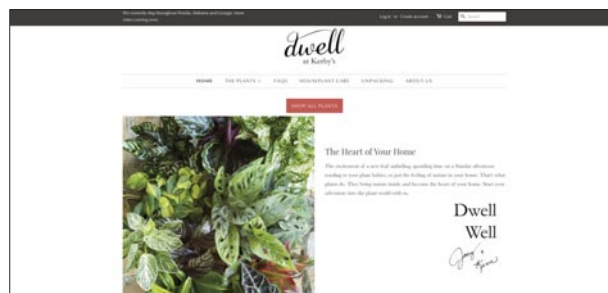

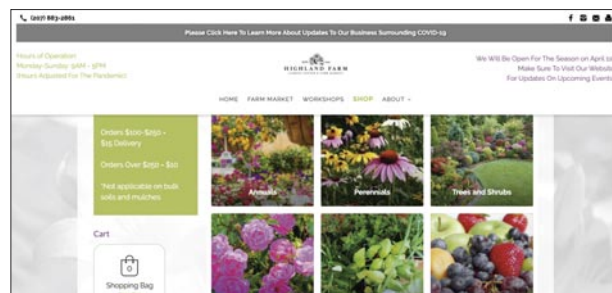

Square for Retail (www.squareup.com) offers a full POS system to help you manage your inventory, sell in-store and online, take contactless payments, and more. Their free monthly plan includes all the basic features you'll need, but keep in mind that like credit card companies, Square charges a processing fee for each transaction.

WooCommerce (www.woocommerce.com) is a customizable, open-source eCommerce platform built on WordPress, the platform on which many modern websites are built. Once you add the free WooCommerce plugin to your WordPress website, you will be quickly able to set up a new store, take secure payments, arrange shipping options, and more. It gives you the ability to accept credit and debit cards, checks and cash as well as payments through systems like Square, Stripe, PayPal and Apple Pay.

A Few Great Examples of IGCs New Online Stores

Inventory Listing on www.provenwinners.com

Thousands of consumers come to our website every season to find a Proven Winners retailer in their area and many are looking for specific varieties. To better meet their needs and send foot traffic to your store, we've developed a way to relay retailers' inventories on our website.

Your garden center's name listed here.

This pop up displays your store's current inventory of the plant selected.

Let us help you attract shoppers by listing your inventory on the Proven Winners website. Your store's inventory information will be indicated on our Find a Retailer page as well as on the individual plant records. By participating in this service, you are setting your garden center apart by showing potential customers that you have the Proven Winners varieties they are looking to buy.

We have a variety of ways to assist you in getting your Proven Winners inventory more exposure including linking directly to your POS system, using QR code technology, or by simply uploading an Excel file. Our Connect+ team will work with Enhanced and Elite subscribers to make the process as seamless as possible.

Epicor Business Management Software (www.epicor.com/en-us/)

Epicore is a POS and retail management software system that is considered by many to be the gold standard in the lawn and garden industry. Though it is a more costly option than the others mentioned here, it is worth exploring especially if you manage a large inventory or have more than one retail location. With Epicore, you can manage tasks like inventory management, counting, pricing, promotions and loyalty programs from any mobile device. It takes a few weeks to set the system up, so now is the time to work on implementing it so you will be ready when the spring rush arrives.

LandscapeHub (www.landscapenhub.com)

Recently, Epicore and LandscapeHub announced plans to integrate the LandscapeHub sourcing, estimating and purchasing tools into the Epicore POS system beginning Fall 2020. Lisa Fiore, CEO, and co-founder of LandscapeHub expressed, "Now, more than ever before, many businesses are moving towards a digital-first model and needing to conduct business online. We are excited to show the industry the positive impacts of opening and/or expanding their online sales channels to reduce the time spent on sourcing and procurement and utilize better tools to forecast and plan for their businesses."

LandscapeHub is a Chicago-based technology company whose digital wholesale marketplace connects wholesale suppliers with independent garden centers and landscape firms nationwide looking to source product. Longtime nurserywoman Fiore started the business to solve the inefficiencies of the marketplace from both the buyer and supplier perspective.

"Technology is helping retailers build smarter and more efficient supply chains that drive business growth, improved cash flow, and more informed decisions" said Sam Kirkland, Strategic Partnership Manager of Epicor Software.

In the future, LandscapeHub is looking to streamline online ordering sales for retailers without the need for stores to maintain stock on hand. The inventory displayed on a retailer's website would be actual live inventory from their wholesale supplier. This would allow IGCs to focus on doing what they do best – servicing the end consumer – while leaving the inventory piece up to the growers. Watch for more exciting possibilities to come with LandscapeHub.

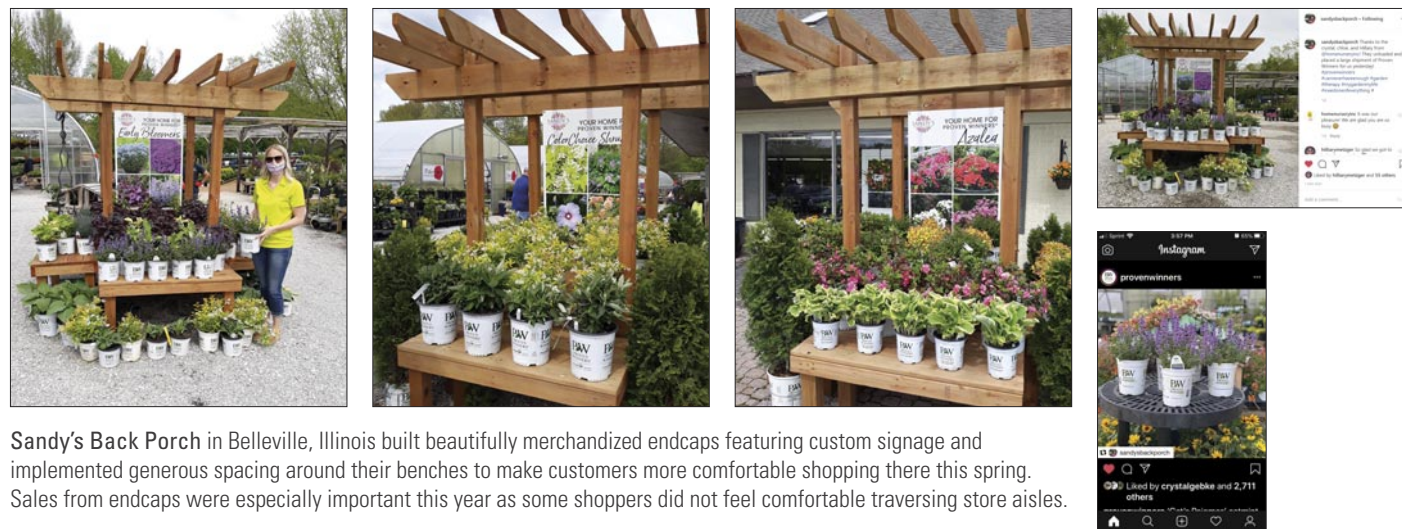

Resources on the IGC Connect Google Drive like plant photos and descriptions can help you set up your online store quickly.

CHANGING YOUR STORE SET UP

More than a decade ago, the standard of a two cart width row was recognized by retail expert Paco Underhill as a best practice. In today's uncertain environment, that standard has increased even more to allow safe social distancing of at least six feet per customer. Some states have established guidelines for retailers to promote safe distancing between customers in checkout lanes and no-touch passing or one-way aisles in stores, so check your local government for details.

Sandy's Back Porch in Belleville, Illinois built beautifully merchandized endcaps featuring custom signage and implemented generous spacing around their benches to make customers more comfortable shopping there this spring. Sales from endcaps were especially important this year as some shoppers did not feel comfortable traversing store aisles.

White Oak Garden Center in Cincinnati, Ohio maximized the use of their outdoor selling space where customers felt more comfortable shopping in an open air environment. They built power islands signed with custom POP that featured seasonal displays of prime items and switched them out regularly with fresh material.

 Use the Professional Store Merchandise credit included with your Connect+ subscription towards POP for your new store set up.

A FEW MORE IDEAS FOR RETAIL SURVIVAL

Necessity breeds innovation, and we've all had plenty of reasons to innovate this year. Challenges can bring out some of our best ideas and make us wonder why we hadn't thought to do those things before. They also cause us to focus more specifically on key programs that bring in profits, turn endcaps and keep our customers happy. Here are a few more smart innovations we've seen from our industry partners this season.

Cart Program

The cart program focuses on bringing more efficiency to the task of merchandising retail displays. A pre-determined mix of plants focused around a theme like Proven Pollinators™, Heart to Heart™ Caladiums or Plants for the Shade is delivered to the store along with all the signage needed to set up the product on an endcap. It makes merchandising quick and easy for your store staff. Home Nursery, a wholesale finished plant grower located near St. Louis, MO implemented the Proven Pollinators Cart Program this season with great success.

Refocus on Key Varieties

Studies have repeatedly shown that the more choices customers are given, the more they are overwhelmed and the less they buy. Next spring consider focusing on plants that are proven performers in your region – those that can handle your heavy clay soils, are deer resistant or bloom reliably all season in your heat. Customers are counting on you to offer them the best options to ensure their gardening success. Spend some time this winter reviewing your inventory to key in on the best mix of plants and products to offer next year.

Create More Custom Signage

Take a good look at your store's signage and ask yourself: How does this signage help my customer and improve their shopping experience? It's time to swap out generic signs for those that more accurately express your store's brand and deliver more helpful information to shoppers. Our creative designers are filled with ideas to help you get started. Contact Meghan or Jessica to talk about customized POP for spring.

He is recently retired as the Director of the University of Georgia's Botanical Gardens in Savannah and was previously an extension horticulturist and coordinator for the Mississippi Medallion Award trial program.

In his role with Proven Winners, Norman is trialing varieties selected for the Heat is On™ program which features plants that are recommended especially for the South. He is documenting and sharing his experience on Facebook and Instagram through his gorgeous, professional quality photography which often captures pollinating bees, butterflies and hummingbirds in action. Norman's syndicated newspaper column, which often includes Proven Winners plants, appears in dozens of daily newspapers throughout North America.

Staff Sergeant Ambrose and Angie Salazar – Garden Obsessions @gardenobsessions and @obsesionesdejardin

Growing up, Ambrose and Angie's parents always had a garden. They knew they would love to plant a garden with their own children, but as a military family, they never thought it would be possible because they move every 2-3 years. Now based at the Marine Corps base in Quantico, VA, they have reinstalled many of the plants they moved with them from their previous home, determined not to leave any Proven Winners behind.

In their new home, they are enjoying educating and learning about making a small space garden into something big. Faced with new challenges including shade and slopes, they are sticking to their motto, “Bloom where you are planted.” Watch for both English and Spanish language videos and posts from Ambrose and Angie of Garden Obsessions on Facebook, Instagram and YouTube.

Beekman 1802 @beekman1802 and @joshandbrent

Dr. Brent Ridge and Josh Kilmer-Purcell founded Beekman 1802 in 2008, but they actually consider themselves to be a 211-year-old company. “When we stumbled across the Beekman Farm in upstate New York, we had no plans to create a business around it. We started making goat milk soaps and gourmet cheeses in 2008 and one thing led to another... now we are proud to have over 180 employees and be recognized as one of the most successful lifestyle brands in America.”

We have teamed up with Josh and Brent to design and install a new Proven Winners Moonlight Garden at the Beekman Farm in Sharon Springs, NY. Plants that attract pollinating bees were specially selected to enhance the pollination of the foraging material fed to the Beekman sheep, with an end goal of refining the quality of their hand-crafted line of goat milk skin care products. Follow their progress on Facebook and Instagram.

Katie Stagliano – Katie's Krops @katiekrops

Since the age of 9, Katie Stagliano has been working to grow an end to hunger. Now a recent college graduate, Katie runs Katie's Krops, a national nonprofit based in Summerville, SC with 100 gardens run by youth ages 9 to 16 in 30 states. 100% of the harvest from these gardens is donated to people in need in the local community through soup kitchens, food banks, community centers, cancer centers and directly to families. Katie was recently named a 2020 National Geographic Young Explorer, an honor she shares with just 25 other young adults from around the world. We are proud to support Katie's Krops with plants from our Proven Harvest line of vegetables, fruits and herbs.

Retailers will find inspiring content about Proven Harvest plants to share on Katie's Krops Facebook and Instagram pages. She is in the process of producing some fun sharable photos and videos for Proven Winners.

Targeted Facebook Ad Campaign

Reaching the right demographic on Facebook requires the use of targeted paid advertising, which has proven to be far more effective than boosting posts. Enhanced and Elite subscribers will select from three date ranges to run their Facebook ad campaigns. These will occur during the peak seasons which typically run from late April through early June on the East Coast and Midwest, and much earlier in warmer climates like Florida and Texas.

Our team will work with each IGC individually to craft a series of social media graphics to use for each week's campaign, which will allow stores to focus on specific promotions, events or key varieties they wish to feature. We ask that you provide us with the zip codes you would like to target with these campaigns so that we may key in on your desired communities appropriately.

BENEFIT ▶ Enhanced – 5 week campaign
Elite – 8 week campaign
Upgrade this benefit to include an additional ad or extend its run for $75/week.

Customized Pandora Ad Campaign

Enhanced and Elite subscribers have the opportunity to target local garden enthusiasts within a 20-mile radius of their garden center's zip code or another preferred market with Pandora internet radio ads. Laura from Garden Answer is the voice behind all of our Pandora ads, and she will mention your garden center's name and city (if desired) at the end of your customized ad. It is imperative that all participating retailers provide us with an audio recording of how to pronounce their business name and city. Listen to sample recordings at www.provenwinners.com/pandora.

There will be three Pandora ad campaigns in 2021 to accommodate markets from North to South. They generally run from late April through early June on the East Coast and Midwest, and much earlier in warmer markets.

As a bonus, each garden center will also receive 3,200 banner impressions from a digital ad which will include your company logo and link to your website or Facebook page.

Pandora internet radio is available in the U.S. only. Canadian Enhanced and Elite subscribers may exchange this benefit for additional targeted Facebook ads.

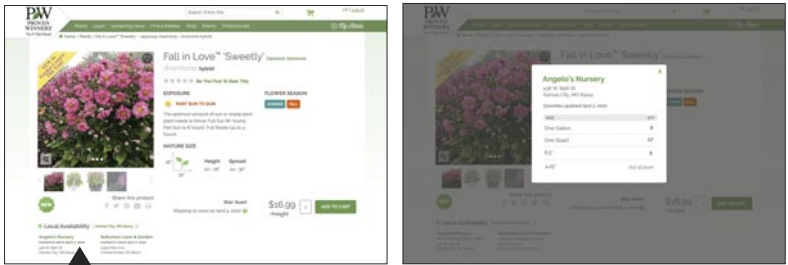

BENEFIT ▶ Enhanced – 3 week ad run/15K impressions; Elite – 6 week ad run/30K impressions
Upgrade this benefit by adding 1 wk/5K impressions for $75 each.

HOW PROVEN WINNERS IS BUILDING BRAND RECOGNITION

Every single day, we’re reaching out to consumers to communicate our brand promise and build the exposure that is so critical in our customers’ success. Our broad reaching marketing campaign delivered over 8 billion impressions last year by harnessing the power of all the efforts you see pictured below.

These impressions serve as reminders and motivation for consumers who have never been exposed to the brand in addition to the loyal following we’ve worked to build. Though the campaign runs all year, it is most heavily weighted during peak selling seasons to help move product when store traffic is high.

Reaching Consumers from Every Angle

- Digital Ads – Google advertising is a powerful tool for large scale reach out to the masses. Over seven billion impressions were made last year through Google Display Retargeting. We strategically placed ads as consumers browsed Google or its partner websites, creating well-timed placements throughout the buying season.
- Print – Print advertisements in U.S. and Canadian gardening and lifestyle magazines run from early spring to fall. In addition, a half million copies of our popular Gardener’s Idea Book and 120,000 copies of Gardening Simplified are distributed by request each year.
- Radio – Broadcast radio ads featuring Proven Winners ColorChoice shrubs run from Mother’s Day to mid-June, targeting 48 million listeners.
- Pandora – Pandora internet radio ad campaigns run from May through mid-July targeting 85% female and 15% male listeners, ages 35-64.
- Websites – 30 million impressions were made in this year on provenwinners.com, nationalplantoftheyear.com, beauty.provenwinners.com and GardenDesign.com.
- Containers + Tags – Consumers seek out our signature white branded container to know they are buying authentic Proven Winners annuals, perennials and shrubs at retail.
- Social Media – We’re engaging with consumers every day in the dynamic online communities we’ve built on social channels including Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, Pinterest and YouTube. In addition, spokeswoman Laura of @Garden Answer does a phenomenal job of highlighting our products while reaching her millions of fans daily.
- Billboards – 90 U.S. and 61 Canadian billboard messages are displayed each spring along North America’s busiest roadways remind consumers that it’s time to shop for Proven Winners.
- Sponsorships – Our GardenSmart PBS sponsorship reaches 92% of the country, hitting 96% of the top 25 markets with ads aired on 424 stations. That adds up to 2 million viewers per month, 81% of which are homeowners.

We want you to be armed with everything you need to know to have a profitable season.

Getting Certified Creates New Opportunities

On page 14, you read all about our Connect+ exclusive marketing services for IGCs. It all begins with getting Certified. Once your business has completed Certification, you are automatically enrolled at the Getting Started level of our Connect+ marketing service. From there, if you’d prefer to upgrade your subscription to the Basic, Enhanced or Elite levels, our Connect+ marketing specialist will be happy to help guide you through that process.

One more important reason to get Certified is our enhanced Find a Retailer listing at provenwinners.com. We list Certified Proven Winners independent retailers because we need to send customers to stores who have taken the time to train their staff on our plants. To maintain your listing, be sure to get recertified annually. Uncertified retailers are listed as “unverified listing” until they complete their recertification.

Put These 3 Ideas into Action
The content of our Gardener's Idea Book isn't just meant to inspire consumers – it's there to inspire you, too! Here are 3 concepts from this year's book that you can use for marketing and merchandising your store.

POLLINATOR GARDEN DESIGN

- At Retail:
- Create an endcap signed with the Pollinator Garden Design displaying the three plants in the design as pictured.
 - Use a full bench for pollinator plants signed with our Proven Pollinators signage that you can download free from the IGC Connect Google Drive or order online.
 - Host a workshop about pollinator-friendly garden design.
 - Do a Facebook Live or Instagram TV video showing several options for plants you have in stock to design a pollinator garden.

AREA: 10' x 3' LIGHT REQUIREMENTS: Full sun
PLANTS:
A: 10 – TRUFFULA™ Pink Gomphrena
B: 10 – LUSCIOUS® BERRY BLEND™ Lantana
C: 18 – GOLDDUST® Mecardonia

SHE SHED IDEAS

- At Retail:
- Link to the she shed planting bed design and plant lists from beauty.provenwinners.com/she-shed/ on your own website, in a newsletter article about she sheds, or on your Facebook page.
 - Create a fun merchandised corner of your store mocked up as the front of a she shed using old doors and windows. Gather plants, pillows, outdoor furniture, lanterns and other fun finds from your store to set up your she shed and sell the dream of having one to your customers.
 - Hire an up and coming local interior designer to write a guest blog about she sheds for your website or to do an "Instagram takeover" for a week.

TABLETOP DÉCOR

- At Retail:
- Host a hands-on workshop to make the tabletop centerpiece and concrete planter place markers you see here. Find the DIY video at beauty.provenwinners.com/tabletop-decor.
 - Make the concrete planter place markers yourself, pot them up with succulents, and sell them in your store all year long.
 - Create an endcap for sustainable bridal and party décor using custom signage we'll help you create. Show your customers that cut flowers aren't the only option when planning tabletop centerpieces and favors.
 - Tease these images out on social media throughout the winter as brides are starting their wedding planning.

HEART to HEART™

BUILD SUMMER SALES WITH CALADIUMS

When summer's heat kicks in, brighten up your benches with heat loving Heart to Heart™ caladiums. These season extenders should ideally be brought in once nighttime temperatures are consistently above 60°F; offering them to customers too early will not support their success.

Lush tropical caladiums are the perfect way to bring that "vacation vibe" to container recipes like you see here. Though they all thrive in part shade, newer sun tolerant varieties make an unexpected thriller for premium sun combinations or colorful foliage accent for garden beds. These beauties deserve space on a prime endcap or power island to capitalize on impulse sales.

PROVEN ACCENTS COMPLETE YOUR CONTAINER RECIPE LINEUP

We often talk about promoting the thriller-filler-spiller method of creating container recipes, yet we focus much of our efforts on top-selling flowering plants like Supertunia® petunias and Superbells® calibrachoa. The new Proven Accents program allows you to pair equally important thrillers and spillers like spikes and sweet potato vines in one Proven Winners container components display. 37 varieties are included in the line.

Using Proven Winners branded accent plants means you can now promote your recipes as 100% Proven Winners – a key selling point for consumers who are avid fans of the brand.

We would be happy to work with you on custom POP for our new Proven Accents line.

AQUAPOTS®

THE FINEST IN SELF-WATERING PLANTERS

8 Advantages of AquaPots®

Meet the Inventor of AquaPots®

Award-winning landscape architect Jack Barnwell of Barnwell Landscape and Garden saw the need for gorgeous glazed ceramic, commercial grade, self-watering containers for the variety of properties he services across the country. Since no such ceramic containers were available, he decided to invent this stylish yet practical solution for his clients.

We are proud to offer AquaPots self-watering planters exclusively through Proven Winners. Your customers will be amazed how simple it can be to enhance their outdoor living spaces and have lush, vibrant plantings no matter what kind of climate they garden in.

“The new AquaPots have been a massive hit with our customers this year! We began pre-selling them in late Winter, and once they arrived, we could not keep them in stock. One Saturday we sold three pallets in less than six hours! We have gotten rave reviews from our customers, and they are thrilled with how their plants are thriving in the AquaPots.”
